Neilson split her time between her family's home in Chelsea, London, and her family's country estate, Chiltern House in the Chiltern Hills.^{[11][12]}

Neilson was randomly attacked by a man during her gap year in Perth, Western Australia, at the age of sixteen. She was tied to a tree and continuously beaten during the attack, which lasted two hours before she broke free. She received facial reconstructive surgery in the aftermath, having been left disfigured.^{[17][18][19]} She fell into a deep depression and became a heroin addict; she was sober by the end of her twenties. She had been travelling in Australia with her paternal cousin, Guy Greville, 9th Earl of Warwick, who owned a fruit-bottling company there.^[16] She later said her addiction saved her "because otherwise I would have killed myself".^{[20][21]} Her attacker was later convicted of killing three women.^{[22][23]}

Personal life

Marriage to Nat Rothschild

Neilson and financier Nathaniel Rothschild, from 2024 the 5th Baron Rothschild, from the Rothschild banking family of England, eloped to Las Vegas, US, on 13 November 1995, following a four-year relationship.^{[92][93][94]} The couple first met on a beach in Bali, Indonesia.^{[95][96]} During their marriage, her courtesy title was The Honourable Mrs Rothschild.

They legally separated at Neilson's request in 1997. Their divorce was finalised in 1998.^{[41][97]} She received a substantial out-of-court settlement after signing a confidentiality agreement and agreeing to revert to her maiden name, having been legally known as Iona Annabelle Rothschild.^{[98][41]} In 2007, she told TATLER: "You don't fall in love with a title. You fall in love with a person. And that's all I'm saying. I've never talked about Nat and he's never talked about me. We made an agreement and we've stuck to it. I don't intend to break that promise now."^[16] Caught off guard by a journalist from the Daily Mail on 25 October 2008, her mother broke ranks to describe her daughter's ex-husband as "a very naughty boy", while remembering the "crazy" life her daughter was sucked into.^[99] In 2014, her ex-husband told the Evening Standard: "I find it bizarre that I'm still linked with someone I was involved with literally 20 years ago."^[100]

Relationship with Alexander McQueen

Neilson had a close friendship with the fashion designer Alexander McQueen,^{[101][102]} The pair considered each other confidants;^[103] he called her Tinkerbelle, she called him Lee (his real first name),^{[104][105]} and she had a bedroom in every home he owned.^[106] McQueen's fashion house, Alexander McQueen, dedicated their autumn/winter 1998 show, Joan, to her.^[107] In 2000, she was a bridesmaid at McQueen's unofficial Ibiza marriage ceremony to the documentary filmmaker George Forsyth.^{[108][109]}

Neilson was the last person to see McQueen alive, having left his Green Street, Mayfair home at 3:00 a.m. on 11 February 2010, the day of his suicide.^{[99][110][111][112]} She attended his funeral service, which was held at St Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, on 25 February 2010, where she read lines from the Edgar Allan Poe poem Annabel Lee.^{[113][114][115]} Throughout March 2010, she paid tribute to McQueen by wearing his distinctive "manta" dress.^[116] She organised and spoke at his memorial service, held at St Paul's Cathedral on 20 September 2010.^{[117][118][119]} She acted more reserved after McQueen's death.^{[120][121]}

Other relationships

Neilson dated the management consultant Lord Edward Spencer-Churchill, from the Spencer-Churchill family. Their on-again, off-again relationship started in 2002, and they remained close friends following their 2009 split.^{[122][123]} She attended Spencer-Churchill's civil ceremony to the German photographer Kimberly 'Kimi' Hammerstroem at the Mayfair Library on 4 July 2018,^[124] followed by their religious ceremony at Blenheim Palace on 7 July 2018,^{[125][126][127]} her final public appearance in high society.^{[128][129]}

A former heroin addict, she remained sober from 1999 after attending Narcotics Anonymous meetings.^[159]

Other interests

Neilson was a horse racer until 2013, when she was thrown off the saddle at 45 mph, breaking her pelvis. She was told by doctors that she could never ride again, but regained her ability to walk after twelve weeks.^{[82][160]}

Neilson enjoyed flying helicopters and swimming with sharks. She once competed in a rally across the Himalayas during the winter and once rode a motorbike across Australia. As an adult, her favourite books were Seven Pillars of Wisdom by T. E. Lawrence and anything written by Isaac Asimov.^{[41][13]}

Death

Neilson was found dead at her home in Chelsea, London, on the evening of 12 July 2018. She was 49.^{[161][162][163][164]} Her death was announced to the public four days later, on 16 July.^{[165][166]} The police stated it was not being treated as suspicious.^{[167][168][169]} A spokesperson for Westminster Coroner's Court stated that her cause of death was a "cerebrovascular accident" (stroke).^{[170][171][172]} Her family said her cause of death was a heart attack.^{[173][174][175]}

On 14 July 2018, two days after her death, a picture of a man in a swimming pool was shared to Neilson's official Instagram account, @annabelleneilson1, with the caption: "Fatties get in first!". The posthumous post led her close friends to believe the rumours of her death had been a hoax. Later that same day, a family member cleared her Instagram feed of negative-seeming photographs and captions.^{[176][177][178]}

On 17 July, Neilson's sister, Millie, released a statement on behalf of her family, confirming her death.^[179]

Links to Jeffrey Epstein

Following the US Department of Justice's release in January 2026 of several million communications relating to Jeffrey Epstein, Neilson was identified as having emailed Epstein numerous times between 2010 and 2012, after his 2008 conviction for soliciting prostitution from a minor.^[195]

In the emails, Neilson agreed to 'put together a group of girls' for Epstein and noted that some were 'unfortunately past their sell-by date'.^[196] Another email from a redacted sender to an account named Annabelle Neilson on 26 January 2011 reads "Hey Annabelle, let's you and I try and find something cute for JE tonight."^[197]

Emails from Ghislaine Maxwell in August 2010 warned Epstein to "be careful" of Neilson.^[198] In one email, Epstein asked "Any thing cute for after", Neilson replies "Cute as in cuddle toy? or cute as in badly behaved English girls." She added "There is a little thing for my very young friend who is lurching her bikini range at Morton's but that might just drive you mad!!! I have a friend I might call."^[199]
